Principals Open Doors To Students, Faculty

By LUCILLE HOWARD
Star Staff Writer

Lincoln High School Principal William Bogar has moved out of his office.

Southeast Principal Dr. Wesley Lauterbach is forming a student-faculty advisory council to consider school policies.

Pius X Principal John Rotter meets with every student in class groups once a week.

These actions of three Lincoln principals are part of the nationwide move by school administrators to improve communications with students in an attempt to avoid future unrest.

Bogar has moved his desk out of the Lincoln High principal's office in an attempt to "be more available" to both students and faculty.

"Discouraging" "It's discouraging for people to try to see the principal on school business, much less visit informally, when they have to get past two secretaries first," he pointed out.

Now when people walk into the school office area or call, Bogar is the first person they reach.

He is also planning to schedule certain hours, before, after and during school, when he will be at his desk to meet with students and faculty who want to drop in.

Bogar, who noted that he is attempting to spend at least 75% of his time on "emphasizing human relations," has delegated many responsibilities to other staff members and is concentrating on small group meetings this year for both students and faculty.

Group Communication Lauterbach's advisory committee is being designed to "get group communication" at Southeast. Any kind of topic may be raised, he indicated, that may solve or prevent problems.

He has appointed nine faculty persons "representing different viewpoints" and asked the student council to appoint three students, although the group will eventually determine its own membership.

Agenda items might include such topics as student-faculty differences of opinion, if any, about use of the media center or enforcement of the dress code, the group may have questions about policies of the administration, he said.

Direct Contact At Pius, Rotter has direct contact with every one of the school's nearly 600 students during a class meeting period every week. In the group sessions, students have a chance to ask the principal questions, as well as provide the principal a chance to communicate with students, Rotter explained.

For the first time this year, Pius students also have elected, in addition to student council, class councils which meet weekly, usually with Rotter in attendance.

Northeast High Principal Harland Taylor said he has maintained sponsorship of the student council through the years in order to keep a channel for listening to students and talking to them.

Reporting that he is considering establishing a special conference time to be available to students, Taylor noted that "students do come in quite regularly."

Students Drop In East High Principal Dr. Jean McGrew said he has "never felt the need" to set up special meetings with students because they drop in regularly at his office.

McGrew's office is the first one inside the school office door, so students can poke their heads in to say "got a minute" before a secretary can get to them.

A student-faculty-parent committee meets monthly at East, he reported, and a "town meeting" in all classes once a month has been proposed by students, McGrew reported.

U.S. Sees Move As Propaganda

... 2 FROM COMPANY 'A'

Saigon (AP) — The Viet Cong radio has announced three captive American soldiers who "proved progressive" during their detention will be released. A U.S. spokesman said the broadcast appeared to set the stage for a Viet Cong "propaganda stunt."

Identifications by the Viet Cong indicated two of the men may have served in the same Company "A" that later temporarily refused an order to move out Aug. 24 against a position that has been held by a strong enemy force.

American spokesmen said a check of Army serial numbers given in the broadcast identified the prisoners as Spec. 4 William A. Watkins, Pfc. James H. Strickland Jr. and Pfc. Coy R. Tinsley.

The U.S. Command would not confirm that Watkins and Strickland had been in "A" Company. Tinsley was identified in the broadcast as from the "4th Battalion, 11th Brigade, Americal Division."

An American officer said the Viet Cong "might try to get a little extra propaganda mileage" out of the connection with Company "A."

Lenient, Humane The broadcast said the three would be released to show the Viet Cong's "lenient and humane" policies, U.S. radio monitors said.

The broadcast said all three, from the Americal Division, were captured by Viet Cong forces on dates ranging from Jan. 10, 1968, to March 9 this year south of Da Nang. It was not known when they would be freed, said U.S. spokesmen who supplied a transcript of the Sunday night broadcast.

In Cleveland, Tenn., Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Tinsley said Coy Tinsley was their 22-year-old son and that Army officials in Chattanooga had told them of his promised release.

The home towns of Watkins and Strickland were not known immediately.

Not Mentioned

Although U.S. spokesmen said they expect propaganda use to be made of the Company "A" incident, they did not indicate the broadcast mentioned it.

The men of Company "A" had been ordered to move out at dawn Aug. 24 — months after Strickland and Watkins were captured — down a mountainside into a maze of enemy bunkers and trenches in Song Chang Valley.

The company had suffered heavy losses for five days making the same push and refused at first to try it again. The lieutenant in charge reported the situation and his colonel sent in a tough veteran, Sgt. Okey Blankenship of Panther, W. Va., to "give them a pep talk and a kick in the butt." The men moved out.

Information

In New York Sunday night, William Kunstler, an attorney for American pacifists, said members of the North Vietnamese delegation to the Paris peace talks had agreed when he met with them in Paris to release "extremely important" information about prisoners of war.

Kunstler, who spoke with newsmen at Kennedy Airport after his arrival from Paris, said the information is "something more momentous than the release of two or three prisoners."

He represents David Delinger and Rennard C. Davis, two of eight defendants on trial in Chicago for conspiracy charges growing out of disturbances at the 1968 Democratic National Convention. He said his clients would decide "how and when" to release the information, but he guessed it would come "within the next 10 days."

Guerrillas Seek Peace, But Fighting Continues

Beirut, Lebanon (AP) — Palestinian guerrillas were reported making peace overtures to Lebanese authorities Sunday, but fighting continued and three Arab governments said they "would not tolerate" Lebanon's continued crackdown on the irregulars.

Egypt, Syria and Libya made a surprise announcement in Damascus pledging full support for the guerrillas in Lebanon. It followed what had been touted as the beginning of a mediation effort by Dr. Hassan Sabri el Kholi, personal envoy of Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Damascus Radio said El Kholi, Syrian President Nouruddin Attassi, Libyan Interior Minister Col. Moussa Ahmed and Al Fatah guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat agreed on the need to "guarantee complete freedom for Palestinian guerrilla action against Israel from all Arab countries, without exception."

The announcement came several hours after guerrilla leaders in Lebanon passed the word to thousands of Palestinian refugees and the Syrian government they would like to cool off their conflict with the Lebanese army.

Palestinian sources said com-do leaders had proposed terms for a settlement to Lebanese political and military leaders and had issued orders that no action should be taken to escalate the inter-Arab conflict.

But reports of fresh clashes between Lebanese army troops and irregulars raised the casualty toll to at least 47 dead and scores wounded in the past five days.

12 Killed In Tripoli

Seven soldiers and five civilians were reported killed Sunday in the northern port city of Tripoli, most of which was occupied by guerrillas. Palestinian sources said five guerrillas were killed when Lebanese artillery shelled an area near the village of Ebel el Saki.

The irregulars continued to occupy the villages of Yanta and Bint Jbeil, while Lebanon claimed its troops ousted another guerrilla occupation force from the village of Deir Mimas.

But former Premier Rashid Karami, who resigned Wednesday when the violence broke out, said negotiations were under way to restore peace, and he expressed hope they would succeed "very soon." Karami would not say whether guerrilla leaders were negotiating directly with the Beirut government.

Clinton Area Groups To Discuss Problems

Clinton area residents are being organized into neighborhood groups to discuss environmental problems.

Mrs. Sue Scott, project manager of the Home and Neighborhood Development (HAND) program, said the groups will discuss environmental problems common to all.

Mrs. Scott said each neighborhood discussion group will have a captain who will report concerns of the particular neighborhood to the HAND Council.

"The neighborhood captains will represent their neighborhoods on the council," she said.

20 Groups Mrs. Scott noted that the Clinton area will be divided into 20 neighborhoods. Nearly 20 persons have agreed to serve as captains.

"Training sessions will be held the first week in November for the neighborhood captains," she said.

Mrs. Scott said the captains will hold a group meeting once a month regarding environmental problems.

Trash Pickup She also noted that a trash pickup in the alleys between 30th and 28th Sts. from Potter to Leighton is being planned for Nov. 8.

"Anything that is of no value will be picked up to keep the yards looking nice," she said, noting that the city will provide a truck.

She said a trash pickup a month ago resulted in the gathering of 20 loads of trash in a span of two blocks.

"The neighborhood captains in that area will be informing residents to put out all the trash stored inside homes," Mrs. Scott said.

She said in the last such drive tree limbs, old appliances and junked cars were removed.

FESTIVAL OF FAITH PARTICIPANTS ... pack Cathedral of the Risen Christ.

Festival Audience Told Peace Not Easy

By LINDA SULLIVAN
Star Staff Writer

Addressing more than 1,000 people Sunday at the Lincoln Festival of Faith, National Council of Churches President Dr. Arthur S. Flemming said peace does not come to those who will not work for it.

Peace must be purchased at a price, Dr. Flemming said.

"Are we peacemakers, or do we sit in the grandstand as spectators, expressing the hope that someone else will bring peace to our strife-torn nation and world?" he asked.

The former secretary of Health, Education and Welfare under President Dwight D. Eisenhower, Dr. Flemming said that the ecumenical group of churches must strive first for the reconciliation of man in the search for peace.

Mediation, according to Dr. Flemming, is the best way to do this.

Citing the success of mediation in industrial disputes in the 1930s, he said that only through this means can unmet human needs be recognized and programs instigated to answer them.

The principle of coalition should be instrumental in dealing with the problems of society, said Dr. Flemming.

All Segments

A local urban coalition must be made up of representatives of the power structure of all segments of the community, he said, including business, labor, youth, the mass media, education and civil rights and minority groups and religion.

"Transportation, housing and all aspects of life apart, should be dealt with by the urban coalition," Dr. Flemming stated.

Stressing that controversial problems should not be shirked, he pointed out that if there is not an occasional walk-out at a coalition meeting, some of the issues are being avoided.

Labor Disputes

Dr. Flemming cited recent labor disputes in St. Paul, Minn., as an example of the positive effects of an urban coalition.

When black workers halted construction in the city, the urban coalition stepped in and mediated. "Within ten days to two weeks," noted Dr. Flemming, "a solution was worked out."

The churches have a responsibility to see that cities have urban coalitions, Dr. Flemming said. "If we do not accept these responsibilities, we are committing a serious sin of omission," he added.

Utmost Importance

The reconciliation of God with man is of the utmost importance, Dr. Flemming noted, for only through that reconciliation can men be endowed with the courage and vision to seek peace.

Dr. Flemming is president of MacAlester College in St. Paul, Minn. and former president of the University of Oregon and Ohio Wesleyan University.

The Festival of Faith was sponsored by the Lincoln Council of Churches, Lincoln Lutheran Churches (ALC and LCA) and the Catholic Diocese of Lincoln. It was held at the Cathedral of the Risen Christ.

New York Times
News Summary

(C) New York Times News Service

Cairo — Egypt's President Nasser stepped in as a mediator in the Lebanese crisis, sending an envoy to deliver messages to King Hussein of Jordan, President Nureddin El Attasi of Syria and Yasir Arafat, head of the Palestine liberation organization. Lebanon's president had appealed to Nasser to intercede to avert an all-out struggle between the Lebanese army and Palestine guerrillas and others. (More on Page 1.)

Opposition Set Back In Portugal

Lisbon — The government's National Union Party in Portugal piled up such lopsided majorities in national elections that the combined opposition seemed unlikely to win a single seat in the 130-seat national assembly. The voting was marked by a high rate of abstention in key districts and by the emergence of former Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar from his residence to cast his ballot. (More on Page 11.)

Arms Talks Spark U.S. Fears

Washington — Knowledgeable officials in Washington expressed both fear and trepidation about the impending negotiations with the Soviet Union on controlling the nuclear arms race. They saw a promise of an agreement limiting the costly race and a threat of a more intense arms race if the talks should fail.

Russians Appear Split On Talks

Moscow — Leaders in the Soviet Union have a sincere wish to reach accords with the United States on limiting the arms race but Russian military leaders appear to be not as enthusiastic, western diplomats in Moscow said. As a result, new weapons systems that could be cut back later if negotiations succeed are thought to have been approved by politburo leaders.

Strike At GE Could Be Test

New York — A nationwide strike against General Electric, the country's fourth largest industrial corporation, that could be a long and bitter test of the administration's anti-inflation fight and of future industrial bargaining, was promised for Monday by a coalition of unions including some of the nation's most powerful unions. More on Page 3.)

Agnew Defends Choice Of Words

New York — Vice President Spiro Agnew, in an interview published in Newsweek, defended his recent use of terms like "impudent snobs" as a calculated use of "punchy language" to get his points across. Referring to a New Orleans speech in which he attacked backers of the Oct. 15 moratorium, the vice president said: "If I had to do it again, I'd still deliver the speech just as I wrote it."

Cutbacks Seek To 'Cool Dissent'

Miami Beach — By cutting back Vietnam troop strength in "agonizingly small installments," the Nixon administration has attempted to placate public opinion and cool dissent, the head of the influential Union of American Hebrew Congregations charged in a speech to a Miami Beach convention of the organization.

Trial Lawyers Hit Nomination

Cambridge, Mass. — Confirmation of

Judge Clement Haynsworth Jr. as a justice of the Supreme Court would "undermine" public confidence in the court, the board of governors of the American Trial Lawyers Association said in a resolution based on discussion of the case and a poll of the association's members. (More on Page 11.)

New Juilliard School Dedicated

New York — The lavish new quarters of the Juilliard School, one of the world's foremost musical conservatories, at the Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts were dedicated formally with a nationally televised concert, a speech by John D. Rockefeller III and the attendance of more than 1,000 notables from the worlds of music, politics, the arts, business and society.

Feeding Changes Benefit Dairy Farm

By GLENN KREUSCHER
Farm Editor

Dunbar — Most any farmer would enjoy having a farm three times larger without having to purchase more acres.

In essence, this is what happened to the 280 acres operated by the Dean F. Landwehr family near here. A change in farming operations made it possible to produce enough feed for more than 100 dairy cows on land that previously was providing for only 43 cows.

Dean Landwehr tells how just a little over three years ago the family almost decided to quit the dairy business.

Results Questioned

They questioned whether 43 cows was a big enough herd to make a dairy operation profitable. About the same time, to make things worse, three of the Landwehrs' green chopped cows died from bloat.

"It was enough to make you want to quit," says Landwehr.

That was when Landwehr and his family decided the Circle L Dairy had to produce more and the herd had to get larger. The magic wand was a change in how they handled feed.

When the Landwehrs changed to a low-moisture silage unit, they found that their same 280 acres of land produced enough feed for 100 milk cows and 100 head of young stock.

Not only did the herd increase in size, but production per cow climbed from 9,000 pounds of milk to more than 14,000 pounds.

Another thing that Landwehr decided the farm needed was storage for high-moisture grain. Now every crop on the farm — from wheat, oats and corn to alfalfa hay—goes into storage at the peak stage of production.

"There is no doubt but that the high quality feed has been a big item in the increased production," says Landwehr.

Rural residents in the area of the proposed Platte dam will be disappointed that the Army Corps of Engineers hearings will not be conducted in their area.

One caller described the frame of mind of a person whose home was threatened with inundation would be in as he drove around Lincoln or Omaha trying to find a place to park so he could attend a meeting to defend his viewpoint.

"You are not in the best frame of mind to start with and after an ordeal like that you wonder why the city boys are so anxious to take your land. You'd think parking problems would give them enough exercise to keep them busy for a long time," the farmer said.

The Nebraska Soil and Water Conservation Districts Association has declined to take a stand on the Platte dam proposal until the state study ordered by the Legislature is completed.

According to the information we have, this study, which began Sept. 30, will possibly require the next two or three years to complete.

A great deal of attention will be focused on the alleged pollution of Cedar Creek in Cass County by Midwestern Feeding Co., at Manley.

The decision forthcoming from the Nebraska Water Pollution Council will be of interest throughout the United States.

On one side of the question, the council hears many landowners along Cedar Creek pleading for the return of the stream they loved and valued for generations.

On the other side is W. C. Foxley of Omaha, general manager of Midwestern Feeding, who warned the council to go slow on a decision. Meanwhile, the company pours thousands of cattle into a lot of about 140 acres.

Foxley did quite a little talking about Texas. How the advantages were in favor of the Texas feedlots and the importance of feeding to Nebraska's economy.

Foxley didn't offer to cut down his operations until a solution was found. In fact, he declined to tell the council how many cattle were in the feedlot or who the stockholders were in Midwestern Feeding Co.

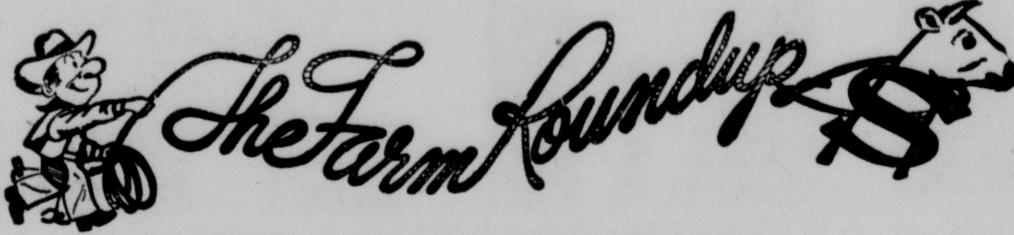

"What happens now?" asked 82-year-old J. R. Mayfield of Louisville, a lifelong resident and landowner in the area. "What can we expect of the Council Foxley doesn't do anything?"

This cattle business is really something these days. Sometimes we wonder what we are going to see next.

We received an invitation to attend a field day that will be held 25 miles southwest of High River up north in Alberta.

The invitation, at first glance, appeared to be connected with a machinery event, because it was called the Hays Converter Field Day.

On reading a little further, we learned the Hays Converter is actually another one of the multitude of new beef breeds that seem to be springing up behind every rock nowadays on the range.

By Glenn Kreuscher, Farm Editor

One thing evident with the new breeds is the strong public relations program that seems to be associated with "why I should change from Herefords to some new, untried name that will bring me sudden wealth and prosperity in beef production."

The Hays Converters are getting their push from Canadian Senator Harry Hays, former minister of agriculture for Canada. His partners in the enterprise are the American Breeders Service, Inc., of DeForest, Wis., a subsidiary of W. R. Grace & Co.

The Hays Converters stem from Holsteins, Herefords and Brown Swiss.

"We don't care about color, width between the eyes, depth of flank or tail settings. We haven't found a packer who would pay for things like this," wrote Hays.

If you like variety in names and want to be among the latest, you can join the Maine-Anjou Society with a founders membership for a $1,000. Here you can get in on the ground floor of another new cattle venture and your $1,000 will give you a priority on semen and help get the society off the ground.

A $1,000 would help me fly too.

Then, if you don't mind being a little old-fashioned, you can crossbreed with the semen of a Charolais bull named Monster that is said to be as clean as a hound's tooth, long as a well rope and thick as a $10 T-bone. For this line you contact KABSU, which stands for Kansas State University, at Manhattan, Kansas.

Or, you might elect to get in on what has been called the "magic word." This is the F1 Female Foundation, and for this aspect of crossbreeding you will only have to venture as far as Beatrice, where Chuck Tremaine is heading up the F1 Female Foundation as executive secretary. This group is going first class with their first annual meeting in Las Vegas, Dec. 14.

One of the big excitements in beef cattle has been the Simmentals. The first bull of this breed to come to America was called Parisien. Sounds like a French ancestry, and you are right. The big promotion of this breed comes out of Cardston, Alberta.

From Manhattan comes another full-page ad that says "the name of the game is the Murray Grey." They are polled, solid color and are not supposed to ever have a calving problem.

While beef ads used to extol the beefiness of an animal and use such terms as depth of flank and thick-set, you now get ads like KABSU: using for the Simmental: "KABSU has Simmental semen now, the bull's name is Gallant and has size and red eyes."

The Red Angus, once one of the new names, is now an old standby.

You don't hear too much about the Brangus, Santa Gertrudis, Scotch Highlands, Galloways, Devon or Dexter cattle any more, and it has been some time since we have seen a Brahman ad.

To keep pace with the social aspects, it is getting so you need poor fences and neighbors with assorted breeds to come up with something that will give you local distinction.

This is when we always remember one of our favorites in the ranks of old-time cattlemen, who always said, "Just keep going steady down the middle and they will catch you going and coming in this game."

If anyone has a good herd of Herefords, Angus or Shorthorns to give away, we think we can find them a good home.

Today's News Is Not All Bad News After All

By The Associated Press
The news, it is clear, is not all bad.

Take the case of Mary Dwyer of Queens, N.Y., who faced the prospect of seeing five years of her life go down the drain.

Here's what happened: Someone broke into her car and stole two brief cases containing manuscripts representing five years of work and research toward her doctorate degree.

Mrs. Dwyer, an assistant professor at St. John's University, called the police and had her students out looking, but to no avail. Finally, she turned to the Sanitation Department. "If they didn't find it," she said, "it meant all that time down the drain."

Saved The Day

But the sanitation men saved the day. Pete Castro, Victor Ciampoli and Rich Molburi spotted the papers strewn about the street while on their rounds. The papers were a little wet and wrinkled but Mrs. Dwyer was jubilant.

And there was good news elsewhere, too.

In Elmore, Minn., students spent a recent Saturday showing their appreciation to the taxpayers.

The students worked a full day without charge for anyone who requested their help. In all, 175 junior high and high school students mowed lawns, raked yards, painted houses and changed storm windows.

Active Elsewhere

On New York's Long Island, the Westbury senior Citizens' program faces extinction because funds for the 13-year-old project were cut out of the budget in an economy move.

So, hundreds of teen-agers are working enthusiastically to raise $5,500 to save the program. They have $1,500 so far.

"The young people were given an opportunity to do something constructive. They rose to the occasion," said 86-year-old James W. Hardy, president of the program.

"It's when youngsters have nothing to do that they often get into trouble. Give them opportunities for good works. Give them responsibilities. They won't let you down."

Students at the University of Colorado rounded up blankets and heavy clothing for nearly 200 migrant workers after an early winter snowstorm struck Fort Lupton, Colo. The migrants' building was without heat and electricity.

Old Folks Too

Older folks have been doing good, too.

Frank Buckelmeyer is 73, but he is traveling the country on a self-appointed mission of bringing cheer to hospitalized war veterans.

In six years, he has visited 94 Veterans Administration hospitals. He hopes to visit all 166 VA hospitals, and then start all over again.

Some patients haven't had a visitor in years. Buckelmeyer chats, reads newspapers aloud and writes letters for them.

In Mandan, N.D., they put up a suggestion box at the Kiwanis Park —and collected unexpected dozens of thank you notes and $42 in contributions from campers.

The Rotary Club in Dania, Fla., has adopted a young Navajo Indian girl in Arizona and on her birthday Monday, Oct. 20, they sent her gifts of clothing. The girl, Elouise King, 10, is a student at the Shonto Boarding School at Tonaalea, Ariz.

Jack Gordon, a retired gift shop owner, who suggested the project last year when he was club president, said they sent her a camera and film a few weeks ago "so we can see her."

Gordon said he plans to visit other clubs in the Miami-Fort Lauderdale area to interest them in adopting Indian children.

Variety Store's Interior Dazzles Eye

By DICK MEZZY
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Tilden — "Are you out of school for the teachers' convention or are you just skipping school today?" Mrs. Winneata Grubb said as she rang up the cash register.

"I'm skipping school," the blond-haired boy quipped as he picked up his cardboard Halloween skeleton — paid for with a quarter and six pennies — and scooted out the door.

Mrs. Grubb, owner and operator of Johnson's Variety Store here, smiled after the youth as she watched him disappear from view across the street.

'Grandma Johnson's'

Locals refer to the shop, which seems to contain more items in its 25-by-60-foot framework than the mythical horn of plenty, as "Grandma Johnson's store," after Mrs. Grubb's mother, Mrs. Laura Johnson, who died several years ago.

After 27 years of operation in the same location, the variety store, which offers customers everything from numerous novelties to whole bolts of cloth and big bundles of yarn, is one of the few places left that still offers penny candy.

"The kids come in and look through the candy stocks and buy a dime's worth of something that lasts them longer than a single candy bar for the same price," Mrs. Grubb explained.

Pass Time Of Day

The shop also offers those with time on their hands a place to pass the time of day just chatting.

One day, for instance, conversation centered around the number of older folks in town, who was a widow or widower, who had the largest house and just who was doing what.

"We used to have more entertainment," the shopkeeper said, "but when the movie house burned down several years ago they just never started another one. Now we go to Norfolk or Neligh."

The shelves and racks of this small-town store, which Mrs. Grubb jokingly says is in competition "with the department stores in the bigger towns," overflow with items that tempt either the youngster with a couple of pennies in his hand or the housewife who sews her own clothes to cut down on expenses.

Costume jewelry, toys, lamps, drugs and what not are sold at prices that would, in reality, give competition to many of the larger stores.

The friendly atmosphere is one a visitor to the shop immediately notices.

"Well, I see my car's ready, Winneata," a woman who had been spending time in the shop said. "I'll see you the next time I come in."

"Okay," Mrs. Grubb replied. "Any time — I'm always here."

Two Killed, One Injured In Accident

Long Pine — Two persons were killed and another seriously injured early Sunday in a two-car near head-on collision at the junction of U.S. Highway 20 and the Long Pine spur.

The State Patrol identified the victims as Raymond Adams Jr., 19, of Ainsworth and Stanley E. Iverson, 41, of Long Pine.

The patrol said Adams was a passenger in a car driven by Susan Swanson, 18, of Bassett. She was hospitalized in Omaha with multiple injuries.

The deaths bring the 1969 Nebraska traffic toll to 312, compared with 375 on this date a year ago.

Fumes Overcome Creighton Student

Omaha (UPI) — Police here said a Creighton University student whose body was found in a car in his garage apparently died after being overcome by fumes from the exhaust.

The victim was identified as Michael D. Maranville, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Maranville of Omaha. He was a sophomore at Creighton.

Two friends found the body late Saturday morning.

Massive Strike Hits General Electric

New York — Unions representing 147,000 workers — 90% of the production employees — at General Electric Co. struck at midnight Sunday in a bid for higher wages and cost-of-living protection.

"Third shift" workers put up picket lines at GE plants around the country, several hours after the company rejected a last-minute bid for binding arbitration of the national contract dispute.

The first reported picket line appeared outside the Hudson Falls, N.Y., plant at 9:30 p.m., to prevent workers from beginning a 10 p.m. shift.

The unsuccessful contract negotiations had been led by two unions representing a large proportion of the company's 147,000 unionized employees. The International Union of Electrical Workers, AFL-CIO represents 88,500 GE workers, and the independent United Electrical Workers represents 16,000. The UE and IUE contracts expired at 12:01 a.m. Monday.

Eleven other unions representing GE workers promised to support the strike.

The IUE has a total membership of 350,000 and the UE has 167,000 members.

GE, one of the nation's largest manufacturing companies, employs 310,000 persons and produces military and aerospace products, consumer goods, and industrial goods and components.

The company has plants with large numbers of unionized workers in Lynn and Pittsfield, Mass.; Schenectady, Elmira and Syracuse, N.Y.; Bridgeport, Conn.; Philadelphia, Erie and Allentown, Pa.; Cleveland, Ohio; Fort Wayne, Ind.; Louisville, Ky.; Baltimore, Md., and Decatur, Ind.

"The interest of the company and the welfare of its employees would seriously be jeopardized if we were to reject the long-term operation and welfare of the business as a whole, which are properly our responsibility, to a third party," the company said.

The unions proposed Sunday that the dispute be turned over to the American Arbitration Association.

GE negotiators had offered an immediate 20-cent increase in hourly wages averaging $3.25, with terms for wage reopeners in the second and third years of a three-year pact. The company had also offered up to 25 cents hourly in addition at wages for special skills.

Douglas County's ADC Roll Up Sharply; Reason Sought

Omaha — Douglas County officials are attempting to find the answers to a recent sharp rise in the number of families receiving aid to dependent children.

Officials report an increase of 10% in the number of ADC families in the last three months. This is more than half the total increase for the year ended June 30.

Harold W. Rogers, head of the Douglas County Assistance Bureau, said the number of families on ADC has increased from 3,538 to 3,895 since June 30. These families count 12,525 children, up from 11,602 on June 30.

Welfare Director Michael Healey cited two possible reasons for the recent increase.

They are:

—The county, in line with a Department of Health, Education and Welfare directive, now accepts all applications for assistance without prior investigation.

—Supreme Court rulings striking length of residence requirements for aid may be bringing people into the area.

Agnew Helped

Washington (UPI) — Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., said that Vice President Spiro T. Agnew had inadvertently helped opponents of U.S. testing of multiple-warhead missiles when he recently criticized them.

College Enrollment Up

Omaha (UPI) — A report issued by the Nebraska Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers indicates enrollment in 29 institutions of higher education in Nebraska this fall has increased 6.4% over the 1968 figure.

The 29 reporting institutions have a combined enrollment total of 64,863 students, or an increase of 3,899 over last fall.

Nebraska universities reported enrollment increases totaling 7.6% over-all. Public colleges had a 6.4% hike and private colleges were 2.1% down in enrollment.

NU Numbers Up

The enrollment at the University of Nebraska at Omaha was up 12.3% and totals 12,120. The Lincoln campus had a 6.4% hike, from 19,150 last year to 20,376 currently.

At Creighton University, the 4,234 students represent a 1.2% increase over last year.

Currently, 12,468 students are enrolled at the four public colleges — Chadron, Kearney, Wayne and Peru. The total compares with 11,706 last year.

Private Colleges Down

Twelve private colleges reported a total enrollment of 11,274, down from 11,521 a year ago.

Six public junior colleges have 3,635 students, up 25.2% from last year.

A total of 756 students were enrolled at Grace Bible Institute, St. John Vianney Seminary, Platte Valley Bible College and Nebraska Christian College.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

People who don't follow sports are missing a lot of good things out of life. Sporting events can be entertaining, of course, but this is not all that might be said for them. They, also, can be pretty educational.

Take the two recent cases of the New York Mets and Wyoming football coach Lloyd Eaton. Eaton recently dismissed 14 black members of his football squad for engaging in anti-racial demonstrations which he considered a violation of the rules governing the football players.

Now we do not intend to argue one way or another about the racial question involved or whether Eaton was right or wrong. But following the dismissal, Wyoming played Brigham Young University and, with six regulars out of the lineup, won the game by a 40 to 7 score.

That's the thing that impresses us and from which you learn a little humility. Behind the six regulars were six other fellows, all ready, willing and apparently able, to play the game.

Nebraska this year has been hard hit with injuries in the backfield. But with replacements such as Jeff Kinney, Nebraska football fortunes have been much better than anyone might have had a right to expect.

The whole point is that nobody is indispensable. You may be where you are by good fortune, as well as by ability. It is not always a matter of your own superiority but simply the fact that you are where you are that places you ahead of others.

Upon your departure, it might surprise you to learn that your shoes are being filled admirably by someone else. Possibly, the next guy to come along does an even better job than you did.

The idea is not to throw a wet blanket on everyone or to suggest that we all go around beating our breast. But you might be a better person from all points of view if you realize the world can and would go right on without you. This kind of realization will bring out a lot of good characteristics in people.

As for the Mets, no one needs to be told their story. Not given a chance to win their league, they went on to become world champions. Observers have said that the celebration in New York exceeded anything in the past history of the city, and that includes a lot of big celebrations.

The rise of the Mets was the realization of a dream and that's what caught the imagination of New Yorkers. New Yorkers, particularly, are known for being a little cynical but a dream is a dream regardless of where you live.

And a dream come true is an exciting thing, regardless of where you live or who you are. You don't have to be a baseball fan to dream but if you know the story of the Mets you know that dreams can come true.

You know that what you have tried to do for years but never accomplished might suddenly come to pass. A young man may be recognized by the girl he has long admired. An old man might discover that the dawn of a new day is just as precious in advanced years as it is at a tender age.

Parents might discover that the child with whom they could not communicate is not as distant and aloof as they thought. Something might happen whereby it dawns on children that their parents are not the old fuddy-duddy uncompoos that they had thought.

When dreams can come true, an employee can discover that his boss is a human being, a boy can find a stray dog and a little girl can make a new friend. It's the kind of thing in which everyone can share and always for the better.

When the Mets won they proved that anything is possible and that should give heart to everyone, whether a sports enthusiast or not. That's why the Mets caused such a celebration and we don't blame New Yorkers a bit for their unencumbered enthusiasm. A little hope for our dreams is a sweet and pleasant potion.

MARIANNE MEANS

Book Suggests Gene Slumbered

WASHINGTON — Sen. Eugene McCarthy's new book, "The Year of the People," suggests that he must have gone through the 1968 Presidential campaign in his sleep.

It appears he wrote the book in the same condition. And one cannot but feel that he would have conducted the Presidency in the same slumbering state.

Certainly there is little indication from the Senator's own words that at any time during the campaign he was a responsibly functioning political leader who cared about and understood the nation's many major problems and aspirations.

The book ought to go a long way toward accelerating the middle class feeling of distrust and antagonism toward the youthful activists and militants who made McCarthy their symbolic hero last year. For their champion emerges as self-serving, mean-spirited, uninformative, unimaginative—and, worst of all, from a man who prides himself on excellence of vocabulary—boring.

Sen. McCarthy has always had a reputation for having a poetic, if not a political, soul. He is probably the first Presidential candidate in history to devote an entire chapter to the political use of poetry. But even here, in what he likes to think of as his special realm, he is careless and inaccurate.

He contends, for instance, that John Kennedy regularly quoted from the works of T. S. Eliot during his 1960 Presidential campaign. But a former White House assistant who wrote many of Kennedy's speeches recalls a conversation in which Kennedy expressed considerable distaste for Eliot's words, with the exception of "The Wasteland."

McCarthy contends piously he holds no resentment toward his 1968 rivals, although during his campaign he was repeatedly accused of being vindictive and bitter. Then he proceeds to confirm all his critics have charged. He observes patronizingly about the Chicago convention, for instance, that "I, of course, did not hold the Vice President wholly responsible for what Mayor Daley had done." Wholly responsible, indeed. McCarthy knows as well as any two-year-old that Humphrey had very little control over what happened inside the convention.

McCarthy once told a reporter that he had failed to keep a personal diary during the campaign and therefore much of it was becoming a blur in his memory. That might help explain such a bad book, but it does not excuse it.

'Another Little Bird Told Me . . .'

Farmer Unconvincing

James Farmer, the highest-ranking black in the Nixon administration as assistant secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, spoke as an administration man should in Lincoln last week, but he didn't sound very convincing.

A former director of the Congress of Racial Equality and a one-time civil rights activist, he boldly, if not forthrightly, said that the administration's efforts on behalf of black Americans have cut into black distrust of the President. "The black community's attitude has softened," he said.

Farmer credited the relative lack of racial warfare during the 1969 summer to police restraint in the large cities — and the carryover "positive effects" of the anti-poverty program. Of which the Johnson administration was architect. Curiously, he predicted a problem situation in the cities next summer (where is that lessening of black distrust?) unless more is accomplished in anti-poverty efforts. Which will mean a more positive attitude on the part of the Nixon administration than has been evidenced, the President's proposal for a welfare overhaul notwithstanding.

Farmer lauded the administration's handling of school desegregation, saying that it is trying to speed up the process (by withdrawing pending cases from the courts?) and that more actual desegregation occurred during the past one-year period than in any year since the ruling on Brown V. Board of Education was handed down in 1954. And for that, the Johnson administration should also get credit. It is not beside the point to ask why responsible black leadership almost to man voiced despair when Nixon officials announced that the desegregation campaign would be taken over almost entirely by the justice department.

Perhaps it is in going along with the company line that Farmer can hope to do the best for his race. In that case we are with him, but we think he could be a little more honest about the situation as it stands today.

Stopping Criminal Repeaters

Proper concern has been expressed in various quarters to the proposal by U.S. Attorney General John N. Mitchell that courts be permitted to deny bond to potentially dangerous persons awaiting trial on federal charges. The concern centers on the theory of an accused being innocent until proven guilty.

The idea of bond is to assure the court appearance at a later date on the part of the accused while still not jailing the individual while his case is pending. The trouble is that many crimes are committed by individuals free on bond. If those considered to be a high risk to society could be denied bond, it is reasoned that many crimes would be avoided.

The process admittedly is fraught with danger. There is the risk that bond could be denied to an individual who was not only innocent of the charges pending against him, but who constituted no danger whatsoever to society. And perhaps it is correct to say that the risk of even one injustice is too great to take even for the sake of eliminating many potential crimes.

Yet, what we are talking about is not a wholesale or generalized approach to things. Bail would be denied only in those situations where the risk was obvious and only where judicial consideration had deemed it proper. It does seem that, with sufficient safeguards, it might be possible to deny bail without any sacrifice of fair and equal justice to all.

At least, Congress should look at Mitchell's proposal with care and not discard it on the basis of emotion. A single miscarriage of justice is a terrible thing but crimes against society are matters of grave concern, too.

Divided Public, Lack Of Strong Leadership Cause Allies To Doubt U.S. Steadfastness

Each attempted reform stimulates demand for others and focuses attention on a broad spectrum of grievances from pollution and crime to racial adjustment. The world abroad detects — despite both Johnson's and Nixon's efforts to achieve consensus government — increasing polarization in American opinion, reflected in foreign as well as internal policy.

U.S. society is experiencing an agonizing reappraisal.

On the one hand a misalliance between Vietnam doves, Greek hawks and Israel diehards mixes extreme elements of interventionist and neo-isolationist traditions. On the other hand there is fear that Americans are becoming so inward-looking and obsessed with national problems that they are turning away from foreign responsibilities.

Vietnam is of course only the code word for other symptoms of national uneasiness. Yet the fact that this uneasiness not only persists but deepens and that the absence of outstanding leadership at all levels of American society is becoming plain, profoundly upsets our friends and allies who have hitherto depended upon U.S. steadfastness.

This is particularly disturbing at this historic moment when Washington is on the edge of potentially important negotiations with Moscow. The lack of confidence in American wisdom and persistence haunts many foreign statesmen. They fear that public passions are on the verge of confounding executive command in Washington and hampering even its best intentions.

The era of firm U.S. diplomatic leadership, begun under President Truman in 1945 and responsible for extensive American commitments throughout the free world, is drawing to a close. Its marrow is being eaten out by the corrosion of American society itself and this especially bothers Europe, whose anxiety about U.S. intentions had already to some degree been awakened over the past few years as Washington implied willingness to contemplate substantial concessions in its search for accommodation with Moscow.

The brutal seizure of Czechoslovakia certainly tarnished the dim Soviet moral image but it did nothing to diminish respect for Soviet power. The intense debate in the United States about the advisability of constructing an anti-ballistic missile system to offset what Russia has already done in this field is followed with concern. Western Europe has been decreasingly convinced that American forces would promptly move to defend it against limited attack.

If there is, as feared, a developing political situation that undermines the resolution of the U.S. executive, and if the United States should seem to lose its ability to deliver a blow while the U.S.S.R. becomes immune to counterblows, the repercussions upon Europe's own policy-making became obvious.

All governments on this side of the Atlantic favor understanding between west and east, but they don't want any Washington-Moscow deal over their heads and conceivably at their expense; nor do they wish to trust their own destinies to the leading western power if they feel it is no longer in a position to face crucial problems wisely. It is therefore likely that the relatively subdued chorus of dissonance audible in recent years among our allies will become louder.

Thus, as Europe's mass media mirror the fevers of a convulsed American dream, they see reflected in this distorted image their own potential future.

Walton

We heard from the late Paul McCartney . . . with only the slightest echo.

Proposals for ending, or suspending, or nullifying, or forgetting the war in Vietnam sprouted like turnips. Even the President is getting into the act; he planted one which is due to emerge on TV the night of Nov. 3.

James Farmer came to Lincoln and said the administration is moving to improve the lot of black Americans. One of the leading movers, John Mitchell, will follow him to Nebraska this week.

Spiro Agnew, that great undercover recruiter for student anti-war and protest activities, approvingly reviewed his earlier Manifesto of New Orleans. Everytime he opens his mouth, there are more student activities.

(The vice president may, by the way, be in need of a dictionary. Agnew called the students "effete," which as defined by the jumbo-sized office dictionary means, among other things, "weary, revolutionists" and "no longer able to produce young or fruit.")

(Wrong on both counts. Three strikes and you're out.)

MARQUIS CHILDS

Greek Junta Threatens NATO Flank

WASHINGTON — NATO's unruly child, Greece, the first military dictatorship in Europe since the end of the second World War, is an acute pain for State Department policy makers. Whether in the interest of alleged security the brutalities and stupidities of a crass dictatorship can be ignored and the program of American military aid continued is the still-unanswered question.

As so often in the past, the military are insisting that there is no choice. If the southern pivot of NATO is to be held, the United States must not only continue but expand the flow of arms to the colonels ruling that tragic and beautiful repository of so much of the heritage of the West. Any other course will enhance the drive of the Soviets in the Mediterranean and beyond.

But, looked at solely from the practical and pragmatic view, there is a doubtful proposition. In the aftermath of their coup overthrowing a duly elected government, the colonels purged an estimated 2,000 officers. Many of them, particularly in the Air Force, were high-ranking officers and key figures in the NATO defense system. The purge has left that system greatly weakened.

Underscoring this weakness is the growing evidence of unrest and disaffection in Greece. At great personal risk political leaders hitherto silent are now letting their dissent be known. The latest proof is a letter signed by 30 former ministers and 50 former members of Parliament calling on the United States to follow a policy that will mean the restoration of freedom.

Forwarded through the American Embassy in Athens, the parliamentarians' letter was in response to a statement addressed to Secretary of State William P. Rogers and signed by 50 members of Congress. The statement called on Rogers to give a clear sign of American disapproval of the dictatorship while curtailing military aid to Greece.

Although the Congressional statement got no notice in the controlled press in Athens, it is believed to have been widely circulated through the underground that today takes in a broad spectrum from the left through the center and even

Please sign me Adaline Coffee."

Okay, Mrs. Coffee. You are printed.

Finishing up: —James Farmer, speaking in Lincoln: "The black college graduate has never had it so good." He is barraged with job offers, some of them from companies which only want him to "sit close to the door and look very Negro."

—Dr. Edwin Oldfather Reichsauer, speaking in Lincoln: "It is not a name that gladdens the heart of a young boy. I have often longed for the name of Dean Rusk . . . but not the policy."

—But the quote-of-the-week award goes to John Langford, Governor Tie-mann's primary election challenger. Not speaking in Lincoln, he said: "If we don't succeed in such an effort (preventing urban chaos), Omaha will become another New York City."

—Five of the 12 members of the Nebraska Constitutional Revision Commission hold law degrees. It remains to be seen whether that is a blessing.

—Maybe Ara could arrange peace in Vietnam. He's good at settling major conflicts without a winner.

—Attention all candidates: Consumer protection might be a good issue next year. Why shouldn't we research the effects of such ingredients as cyclamates before they reach the market, rather than after the crime?

—For 10 cents a day, Connie will wake you up every morning . . . it says so in a Daily Nebraskan ad.

—Buffalo hunt Saturday. Better bring out the big guns.

OFF THE RECORD

By Ed. Reed

New York Show—Fabulous Frocks Sunday Ceremony

BY NELLE GREER
New York—It's over. All of those delectable pieces of wearing apparel are back on their hangers. The models have removed their makeup, including long, false eyelashes and have left the fashion arena, that part of it, at least in which the California Fashion Creators played the fashion game for four days. Then there was the flight from Los Angeles to New York City, and among the west to east travelers, in addition to newspaper women, were models.

The models, by the way, were the center of attention for 951 of the 3,000 miles of air travel. But once in New York — well, that is a different story and it began at 8:30 o'clock on Friday morning and continued until 6:30 o'clock Friday evening.

In between the beginning and the end there were five shows each with a full quota of daytime clothes, dinner clothes, evening clothes, and now and then a pants suit.

The morning began with Travilla who offered 96 new fashion costumes for approval, and sometimes disapproval. Travilla did some interesting things with re-embroidered lace on organza; with peasant prints, 'little dresses', with chiffon, checks and plaids. One of the very outstanding numbers was a double-face wool coachman coat in the melon shade, worn over a melon and white plaid wool dress. The long coat was finished at the neckline with a white color. There was a terrific navy red and gold silk linen in a paisley print, and the extra touch that made it different was the cording, several rows of it, just above the hem of the skirt. A new term in the fashion vocabulary this season — or rather for spring of 1970 is "water glass beading."

Time was, we think, when the term was crystal. Anyway in the Travilla collection was a white, water glass beaded chiffon sweater dress designed with a high neckline and long sleeves. The water glass beading came to the fore again in a nude soufflé tent dress which was worn over a water glass beaded jumpsuit, also in the nude soufflé shade.

Next on the program was the Werle collection which easily could give any woman a complex. Everyone went wild, simply wild over Werle's maxi dress in English shepherd check. It was in black and white, long-sleeved and was widely belted with soft black leather. The leather, which looks and feels like satin, also gave an ascot effect at the neck. Most attractive was the coat dress of navy silk cordon, and something to remember was the sleeveless black crepe frock banded in white, with a white touch at the neck. For evening Werle did a long, straight gown in gray crepe. A silver motif, not just a silver shade, but the kind that made the dollar famous, banded the slit sides, cuffed the long sleeves, and circled the throat line. There was a fascinating costume which included a long, black crepe coat that was worn over white crepe pants and top. The interesting thing about all of this is the fact that the coat may be reversed from its front opening to a back opening and thus give the effect of a monk's robe. Werle did so many things, striking, some just pretty, some exceedingly smart. He used as fabrics chiffon velvet, chiffon brocade, textured organza, the cordon which we already have mentioned and, of course, crepe.

The belle of the show in the Latimer for Irene collection, judging from the applause it received, was a black midi suit of silk. The long jacket, in at the waist ever so slightly, was long. It was terrific.

In the Irene collection were numerous and lovely evening dresses — a black and white print designed with a long-sleeved, fitted bodice above a long skirt in the same print but veiled with a layer of white chiffon to give it a misty look. Black pointed up the midriff and banded the hem of the skirt. Another delightful costume for evening was a long-sleeved pale green organza that had an all-over pattern of handmade, minute flowers, each centered with crystal.

Irene did things with linen-maxi coats over pants, for example, and most attractive costume suits — short jackets over a simple frock, quilted floral costumes, some with hem-length coats overstraight frocks, and some with waist-length jackets — some with jeweled ornamentation, and some plain. Pleated chiffon fashioned dresses under floral patterned coats. Back to the evening gowns again, just to mention the maxi coat, applique on an all-over floral pattern, and worn over a long, filmy, halter-neck gown of yellow chiffon.

Ernest Strauss used an "On The Move American" as the theme of his show. Strauss does suits — some with blazers and some with long jackets — he does flippy skirts that belong to dresses that are worn under the short jackets or long coats. He goes in heavily for Italian cottons, silk tweeds, fibranne linens and — another new word in the fashion vocabulary — Alaskine. Alaskine is a silky worsted.

Opening lead — ten of diamonds.

This is probably the most famous hand in the history of bridge. Legend has it that the Duke of Cumberland, some two centuries ago, held the East hand and backed it to the tune of 20,000 pounds against the North-South hands.

The Duke lost the wager as he was unable to score a trick despite his extraordinary array of high cards. Regardless of whether or not the tale is true or whether the hand was actually ever dealt, it comes to us from way back in the days of whist, having been first published by Edmond Hoyle in 1750.

No bidding is given with the Duke of Cumberland hand, the presumption being that somehow or other the final contract was seven clubs redoubled played by South.

There is no way of stopping the grand slam if declarer plays correctly. Aces become deuces as South destroys every honor card held by East.

Let's assume that West leads a diamond or a heart. Declarer ruffs, trumps a spade in dummy, and returns a club, capturing East's nine with the ten.

Declarer ruffs another spade in dummy, and again takes a trump finesse.

When declarer now ruffs the third round of spades in dummy, his remaining spades become establish.

Declarer returns to his hand by ruffing either a diamond or a heart, cashes the ace of trumps, catching East's king, and chalks up all thirteen tricks as East's aces and kings fall like tenpins on South's good spades.

The deal is an extreme example of the destructive power of unusual distribution. Double and triple voids can very easily wreak havoc with point count and honor tricks.

Incidentally, we would like to respectfully suggest that if you ever play in a game with complete strangers and are dealt the East hand, you should either ask for a new deal or head quickly for the nearest exit!

The candlelight wedding of Miss Sheryl Lueann Erwin of Lincoln, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Erwin of Albion, and William Louis Farmer, son of Mrs. Harry Farmer of Ashland, took place Sunday afternoon, Oct. 26, at the First Christian Church in Albion. The 2 o'clock service was solemnized by the Rev. Ronald A. Irons.

Wearing daytime frocks of crepe in the apricot shade were Mrs. Gerald Mahoney of Lincoln, as her sister's honor attendant, and the bridesmaids, Miss Vicki Erwin of Chadron, also a sister of the bride, and Mr. Farmer's sister, Mrs. Richard Frahm, Stillwater, Okla.

Robert Farmer of Omaha served his brother as best man, and the groomsmen and ushers were Lance Erwin, Rockford, Ill., brother of the bride; Richard Frahm, Stillwater, Okla.; Martin Otte, Gresham; and Alvin Keller, Seward.

For her wedding gown, the bride chose traditional white satin. Venice lace in a scroll pattern framed the high throatline of the long-sleeved bodice, and the lace was repeated in two vertical bands extending from the Empire waist to the hem of the A-line skirt. Her bouffant illusion veil was held by a pillbox cap of lace and satin, and she carried a cascade arrangement of sweetheart roses in the apricot tone.

Mrs. Farmer is careering in Lincoln, and the bridegroom is associated in business in Auburn.

Poll: People Back Troop Withdrawal

... FEAR RED VICTORY

By LOUIS HARRIS

Although by 45% to 20% the American people are convinced that an eventual total withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam would produce a Communist victory there, the public at the same time gives a lopsided endorsement of 71% to 15% to President Nixon's commitment to bring back another 35,000 American fighting men from Vietnam.

These two facts about public opinion in this country point up the dilemma facing both the Nixon administration and the American people over the war in Vietnam: the public wants to liquidate the war, but also fears that unilateral withdrawal will result in a Communist victory, which has consistently been viewed as the justification for U.S. involvement in the war.

The people have overwhelmingly supported the President's announcements to withdraw U.S. troops from the war. Back in July, people greeted the first presidential move to bring back 25,000 troops by a 73% to 12% margin.

Yet the public also holds the view that the more U.S. troops are removed from Vietnam, the greater is the likelihood that resistance to the Communists will be weakened and the level of fighting will not be diminished.

No more than 13% of the public has confidence that withdrawal of American troops will be met by a lowered level of Vietcong and North Vietnam military activity.

A cross-section of 2,504 households was surveyed by Harris interviewers across the nation from Oct. 6 through 10. Thus these current results do not reflect the impact of the recent nationwide moratorium against the war.

The cross-section was asked: "President Nixon has recently announced an additional withdrawal of 35,000 American troops from Vietnam. Do you approve or disapprove of this troop withdrawal?"

Approve withdrawal ..... 71%
Disapprove ..... 29%
Not sure ..... 14%

To test public expectations about the level of fighting in Vietnam as a result of U.S. troop withdrawals, people were then asked:

"As more American troops are withdrawn from Vietnam, do you feel that the Communists will scale down the level of fighting there, will increase the fighting or will keep up the same level of fighting?"

LOUIS HARRIS
Dilemma Illustrated

Communists will scale down fighting ..... 13%
Communists will increase fighting ..... 29%
No change in level of fighting ..... 37%
Not sure ..... 21%

Few believe that the other side will respond to U.S. troop withdrawals by de-escalating the level of the fighting in the war. Nor do more than a minority of less than one-quarter believe that the ARVN troops of South Vietnam will be up to the job of adequately replacing American fighting forces:

"Do you feel that as American fighting forces are withdrawn from Vietnam the military forces of the Saigon government will be able to fight as well as the Americans they replace, or will fight better, or will not fight as well?"

Will fight as well ..... 17%
Will fight better ..... 3%
Will not fight as well ..... 58%
Not sure ..... 20%

Finally, the cross-section was asked about the eventuality of the U.S. withdrawing all its troops from Vietnam, which advocates of the recent moratorium stressed and which President Nixon announced could be accomplished by 1972:

"If the United States withdraws all its troops from Vietnam, do you think the Communists will win the war or do you think the Saigon government's troops can adequately keep them from winning?"

Communists will win ..... 45%
Saigon can keep them from winning ..... 20%
Not sure ..... 35%

Although a sizable body of opinion, as much as one person in three, is uncertain about the effects of complete U.S. withdrawal, the prevailing view is that Saigon could not carry on alone. Yet the frustration in the country is such and the promises of the President about withdrawal so tempting that the thrust of American public opinion clearly is in support of the withdrawal idea, despite almost as clear recognition of the possible adverse consequences of such action.

Of course, the basic dilemma could be broken either by new proposals by Nixon next week, or by actual movement in negotiations. In the absence of either, the dilemma will continue to feed public frustration.

RAMS, MINNESOTA WIN

... 49ers Upset Colts, Jet Rally Downs Boston

By Associated Press

San Francisco upset Baltimore 24-21 Sunday and all but wrote off the Colts as contenders for the Western Conference crown and defenders of the National Football League championship.

The 49ers grabbed their first victory on the heroics of a pair of young substitutes, Steve Spurrier and Johnny Wotell, and the Colts lost it when they missed three chances to score the winning touchdown in the final four minutes. The defeat, Baltimore's third in six games, just about ruined any chance the Colts had of catching up with unbeaten Los Angeles in the Coastal Division.

In other games, in the National League, Los Angeles squeaked past winless Chicago 9-7, Minnesota beat Detroit 24-10, Green Bay whipped Atlanta 28-10, Cleveland and St. Louis played to a 21-21 tie, Washington defeated Pittsburgh 14-7 and Philadelphia edged New Orleans 13-10. The New York Giants play at Dallas Monday night.

In the American Football League, the world champion New York Jets beat Boston 23-17 and remained in first place in the Eastern Division, Oakland overpowered San Diego 24-12 and remained one-half game in front in the West, Kansas City hushed Cincinnati 42-22, Houston got by Denver 24-21 and Miami clobbered Buffalo 24-6.

Wotell, subbing at cornerback for injured Kermit Alexander, gave the 49ers a 24-7 lead in the third period when he intercepted a John Unitas pass and raced back 57 yards for a touchdown. A minute before, Spurrier, quarterbacking in place of John Brodie, culminated a 74-yard drive with an 18-yard touchdown pass to Dick Wichter.

The Colts winning chances were wrecked in the final minutes when Jim Johnson intercepted a Colt pass in the end zone, when Al Randolph recovered a Tom Matte fumble on the 10, and when a last-gasp Unitas pass to Jimmy Orr was stifled in the last two seconds.

Los Angeles won on three Bruce Gossett field goals and rallied to do it after the Bears took a 7-0 lead in the first quarter on a one-yard plunge by Gayle Sayers. Gossett thirdperiod.

booted field goals of 28 and 23 yards and wrapped it up with an 11-yarder in the third period.

Minnesota won its fifth straight against one defeat and maintained its supremacy in the Central Division on a brutal defense and the passing of Joe Kapp. The Vikings stormed into a 24-7 halftime lead on a 41-yard touchdown pass from Kapp to Gene Washington. Kapp passes of 14 yards to Washington and 44 yards to Bog Grimm set up the two other second period touchdowns.

Green Bay's victory snapped a tie for second with Detroit behind the Vikings, as the Lions evened their record 3-3. The Packers won their fourth game against two defeats on the rushing of Donny Anderson, who piled up 114 yards, his best ever as a Packer, in his first start of the season. Anderson, who lost his starting job during the exhibition season, also ran 16 yards for the Packers opening touchdown.

Cleveland, leaders in the Eastern Conference's Century Division, had to settle for a tie when the Cardinals' John Gilliam scored a touchdown in the last eight seconds on a 15-yard pass from Charley Johnson.

Washington, 4-1-1, inched closer to undefeated Dallas in the Capitol Division with two third period touchdowns which wiped out Pittsburgh's 7-0 lead. Quarterback Sonny Jurgensen accounted for both, scoring one on a 10-yard run, and passing 17-yards to Charlie Taylor for the other.

A pair of field goals by Sam Baker and quarterback Norm Snead's bootleg run carried the Eagles past the winless Saints.

The Jets beat winless Boston in the final period on Emerson Boozer's two-yard touchdown run and Jim Turner's 13-yard field goal after trailing 17-13. The Jets remained a game in front of Houston in the Eastern Division.

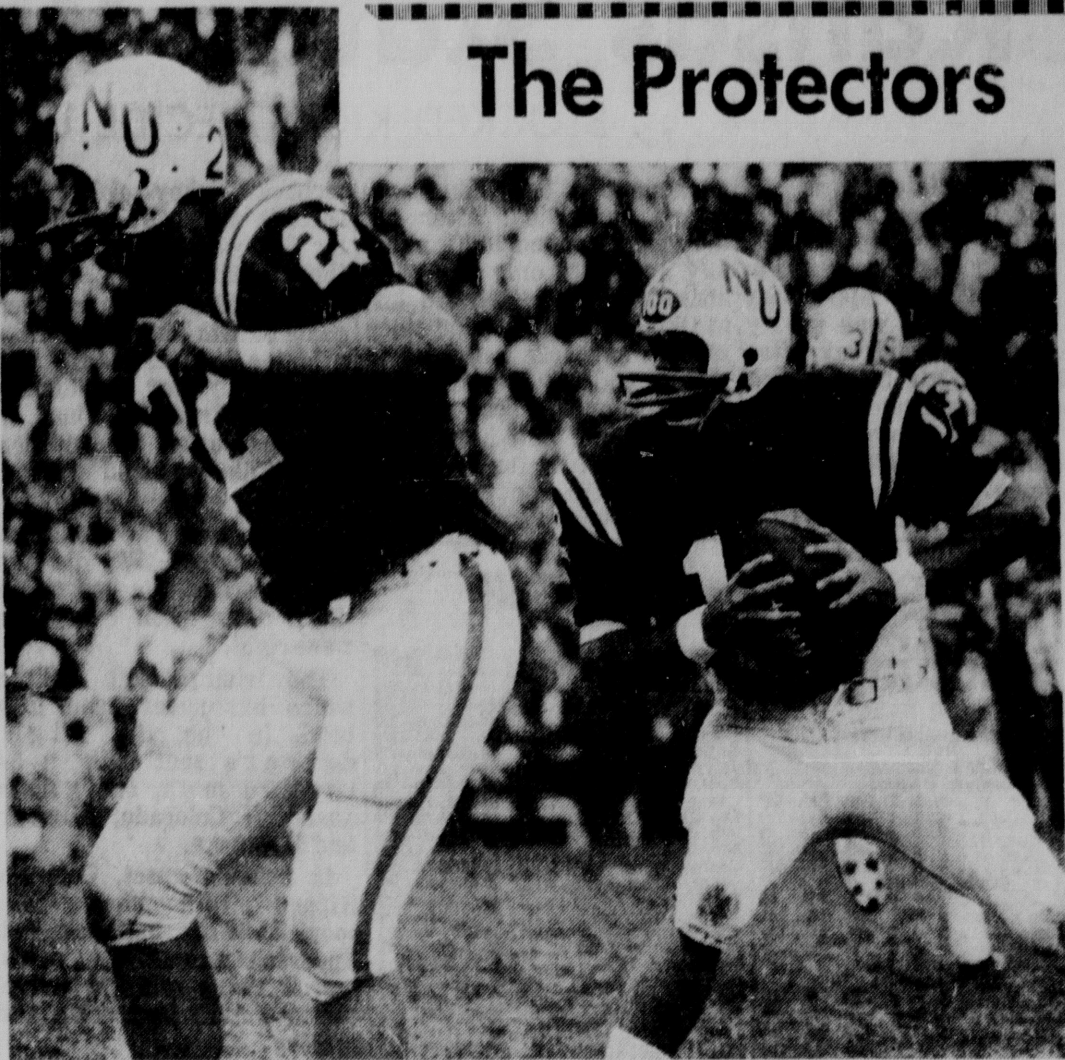

The undefeated Raiders remained one-half game in front of Kansas City in the West and won their 15th regular season game without a defeat, tying an AFL record set by the Chargers in 1960-1961. Daryle Lamonica rifled three touchdown passes for Oakland and Dave Grayson intercepted three passes tossed by Chargers' quarterback John Hadl.

Kansas City, 6-1, unleashed two sparkling plays within eight seconds in the final two minutes to crush Cincinnati's comeback bid. Warren McVea raced 80 yards for a touchdown and Goldie Sellers picked up a Bengals fumble and romped 19 yards for the final score.

The Oilers scored 10 points in the final 11 minutes to rally past stubborn Denver. Roy Hopkins raced 43 yards to knot the count at 21-21 and then Roy Grela booted a 22-yard field goal to win it.

Bob Griese fired touchdown passes of 53 and 41 yards in pacing Miami. The Dolphins stopped O. J. Simpson cold, allowing the Buffalo running back only 12 yards in 10 carries.

Birdie Putt Gives Steve Spray Title

San Francisco (AP)—Young Steve Spray rammed in a pressure-packed six-foot birdie putt — his only birdie of the day — on the final hole Sunday and edged Chi Chi Rodriguez by one stroke for the $20,000 first prize in the San Francisco Open Golf Tournament.

Spray, 28, a five-year veteran on the tour, finished with a one-under-par 70 for a 269. Rodriguez, the veteran from Puerto Rico, had a final 66 for 270.

Spray, in scoring his first tour triumph, had reeled off 17 consecutive pars going to the 18th tee.

Rodriguez, the colorful little guy who appeared about to lose his exemption, already was in the clubhouse with his five-under-par effort.

Spray drove the fairway and then rifled an iron about six feet from the pin. He waited nervously while big Bob Lunn, his playing partner, lined up an 18-foot birdie putt that would have tied Rodriguez. But the burly Lunn missed it and finished with a 69 for 271.

Spray, who had won only $8,175 this year, then stroked home the putt that was worth almost $4,000 a foot.

Lefty Bob Charles of New Zealand had a final 68 and tied Dave Hill, 69, for fourth place at 272. Billy Casper, who won this event last year when it was known as the Lucky International, was one of four at 273. Casper had a final 69.

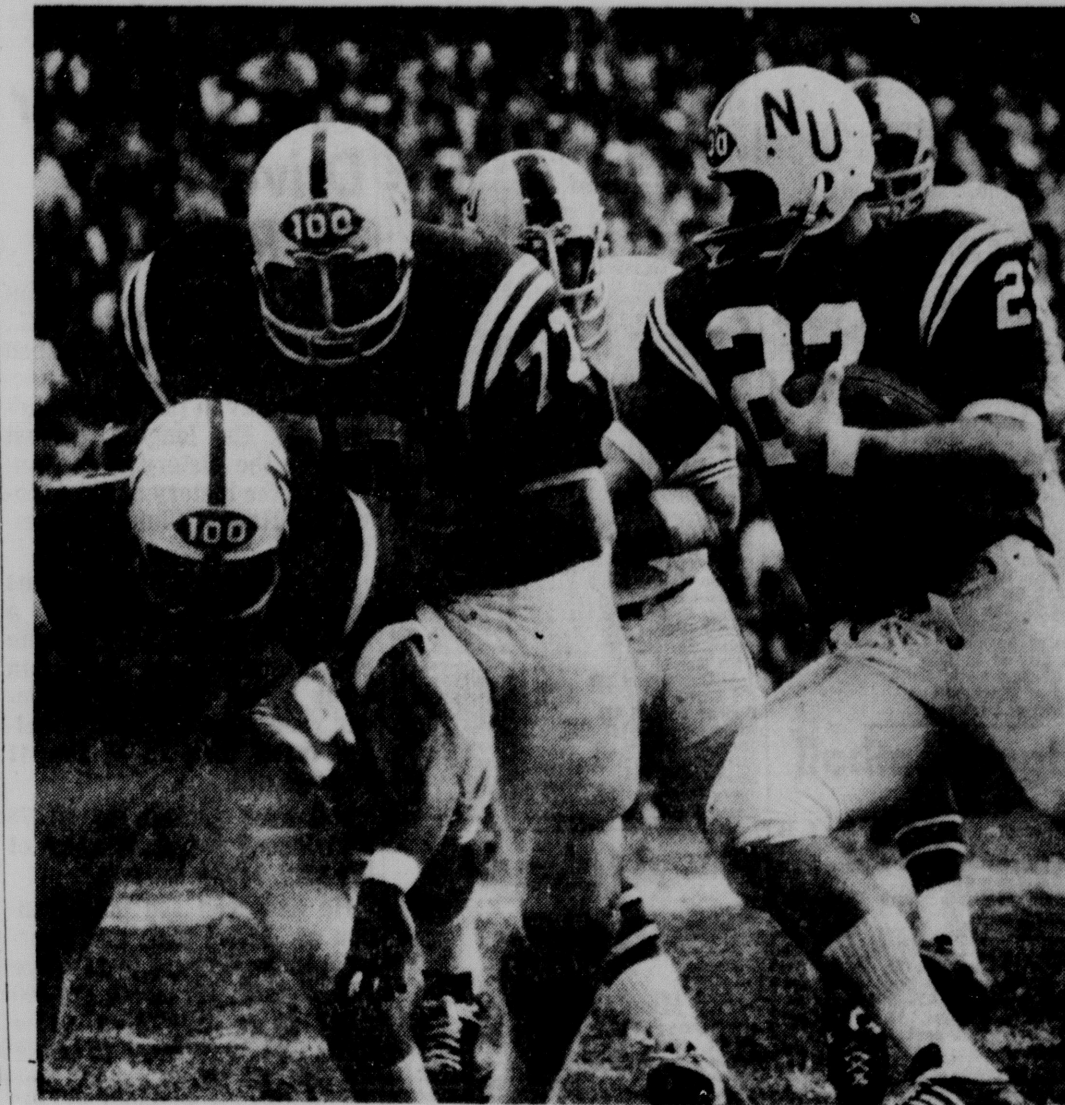

Arnold Palmer, playing his second tournament after a two-month absence, closed with a 67 but was well back in the pack at 277.

Spray, the third-round leader, had a remarkably steady round. He couldn't buy a birdie putt, however, as player after player made a run at the lead.

Frank Beard closed to within two strokes at one point, but put his tee shot in Lake Merced on the 17th and took a double bogey.

Hill, winner of three events this year, moved to within one stroke, then three-putted the 16th, missing a 12-incher.

Rodriguez, who hasn't won in more than a year, appeared to have clinched his exemption for next year with his $11,400 check for second. He moved into a share of the lead with a six-foot birdie putt on the 16th and missed on the next two holes.

Five Class 'A' Clubs Superior

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

The biggest problem in rating the Class A high state is not one of deciding who must be kept off the played a record of consistency worthy of being named.

The problem is compounded by the fact that no club in the state has shown outstanding superiority. Even Boys Town, the only unbeaten eleven in Nebraska, hasn't been overpowering.

Determining that Skip Palrang's club, along with Creighton Prep, Omaha Benson, Bellevue and Lincoln Northeast are demonstrating the greatest power at this stage doesn't take a crystal ball. But where to do from there is another question.

Of the 32 Class A teams, 13 of them eliminate themselves at the outset. Through no stretch of the imagination could Hastings, Alliance, Kearney, Norfolk or Scottsbluff be considered "top ten" material this year.

They are joined in that same category by Omaha teams Bryan, Central, Rumel, Ryan, South, Westside, plus Metro area Millard and Papillion. Omaha North was in the ratings till this week. Then the Vikings lost to Westside.

North Platte beat Lincoln High but lost to McCook, which in turn stumbled to a pair of Class B clubs. That eliminates that trio.

Lincoln Southeast is sidelined by four losses in a row, while Grand Island has dropped one less game this fall.

That doesn't leave many more than the required ten from which to make up the list.

Beatrice and Columbus stack up evenly, but lose out since Columbus dropped a game to Grand Island.

That leaves eleven teams. The struggle for the final spot boils down to South Sioux City and Ralston. The latter has the better record, but has played mostly Class B opponents.

South SIOUX GETS THE AFTER BEATING Blair with complished the feat by a 20 point margin) and after losing to Class B power Omaha Cathedral by a single touchdown.

Cathedral, on the other hand, bombed Millard, 41-8,

Lincoln Northeast gets its chance to move well up the ladder this week. The Rockets play Bellevue, a team which has met all the other Class A leaders.

|---------------------------|-----------------------------|
| 1—Boys Town (7-0)         | 6—Omaha Tech (5-1-1)        |
| 2—Creighton Prep (6-1)    | 7—Omaha Burke (5-2)         |

| 5—Lincoln Northeast (5-2) | 10—South Sioux City (5-1-1) |

Comment — Lincoln Northeast continues to move up a notch or two each week. Now fifth, Lincoln High, with losses to North Platte and Omaha North, stumbling before Omaha Westside, both fall from the list. Lincoln East and South Sioux City are the replacements.

Devaney Agrees K-State For Real, Big Eight Race In NU Lap

. . . HUSKERS BEGIN CRUCIAL DRIVE AGAINST BIG EIGHT CONTENDERS WITH COLORADO THIS WEEK

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

A radio in the Nebraska dressing room had just given the score of the Kansas State-Oklahoma game Saturday as Husker head coach Bob Devaney walked into the room where he meets with writers after each game.

"Well, I guess they're for real," he said, referring to the 59-21 Wildcat victory and to the question that has been asked around the Big Eight all fall, since Kansas State began winning by big margins week after week.

Oklahoma, however, accustomed to being on top and a league co-favorite this season with Missouri, was supposed to end the K-State dream.

They didn't — not even coming close.

Missouri, knocked from the unbeaten ranks Saturday at Colorado, is the next to get a shot at this week in Columbia and it'll be the Missouri pass rush against K-State quarterback Lynn Dickey, who threw for 380 yards on 28 of 42 against the Sooners.

Shortly after concluding that Kansas State was for real, Devaney reached the conclusion that his Huskers were right back in the middle of the Big Eight race after hearing of Colorado's win over Missouri.

"We're definitely in the thick of it," he said. "It's up to us now. It's right back in our laps."

The Big Eight championship chase is a five-team affair this morning among Nebraska, Missouri, Oklahoma, Colorado, all with one loss, and Kansas State, unbeaten in the conference in three starts.

Nebraska still meets three of those — Colorado, Kansas State and Oklahoma — and victories in the final four games would give the Huskers no worse than a tie with either Missouri or Kansas State for the title — all of which puts is squarely in the lap of the Huskers themselves.

For the third week in a row, it'll be Nebraska, with one league loss, going against a foe, Colorado, also with one loop setback and the feeling is that two defeats puts you out of the race.

If that's the case, Nebraska has eliminated two teams — Kansas and Oklahoma State — from the race with second defeats while staving off the fatal second strike themselves.

Missouri coach Dan Devine was talking bowls after his team's loss to Colorado — but not for the Tigers, for the Buffs.

"We lost to a good, well-coached football team and Colorado would give the conference fine representation at a bowl game if it should be invited," he said.

If you go along with the thought that the Big Eight is a five-team race at present and that two losses is the eliminating factor, the key games coming up are:

SATURDAY — Colorado (2-1) at Nebraska (2-1) with the loser eliminated; Kansas State (3-0) at Missouri (2-1) with Missouri eliminated by a loss.

NOV. 8 — Oklahoma at Missouri with one being eliminated.

NOV. 15 — Nebrasak at Kansas State.

NOV. 22 — Nebraska at Oklahoma; Kansas State at Colorado.

Assuming that these five contenders are going to win their games against the three non-contenders, which may be faulty assuming, the Big Eight title chase after this week will involve Oklahoma for sure, Kansas State for sure, Nebraska or Colorado for sure and possibly Missouri.

If Missouri does beat Kansas State to stay in the chase, either Missouri or Oklahoma would be eliminated when they meet on Nov. 8.

Thus you would have, with two weeks to go, Kansas State, either Oklahoma or Missouri and either Nebraska or Colorado.

To go any further would become very confusing which is about the state of affairs the Big Eight race is in this morning.

Kansas State's Victory 'Super'

... BLOCKED KICKS DECIDE UCLA-STANFORD, LSU-AUBURN GAMES

By Associated Press
"Super! Super! Super! Super!"
It wasn't that Vince Gibson was struck speechless but there really was very little else he could say after his Kansas State team pulled off one on college football's real shockers Saturday, a 59-21 thumping of 12th ranked Oklahoma.

That the Wildcats had a chance to beat Oklahoma wasn't surprising. After all, they were ranked 18th nationally and were only four-point underdogs. But they had lost to Oklahoma every year since 1934 — save for a 6-6 tie in 1936 — and the 59 points was the most ever scored against the Sooners, who have been playing football for 75 years.

Leading the rout was Lynn Dickey, a 6-foot-4 junior quarterback. Dickey set Big Eight records with 28 completions for 380 yards in passing for three touchdowns.

"We told our kids we were going to win and that we had a better football team," Gibson said. "They (Oklahoma) had the tradition, but we were not awed by tradition. We felt like we could win."

"We've been waiting for the game when we would put it all together. We did just that Saturday. We had one of those days when everything went right."

The triumph left K-State, which has never been to a bowl, in the Big Eight driver's seat with a 3-0 league mark, one game ahead of Colorado, Missouri and Nebraska.

In another upset, Colorado tripped fifth-ranked Missouri 31-24 as halfback Bob Anderson gained 143 yards, scored twice and set school career marks in scoring and rushing.

In other games involving Top Twenty teams, sixth-ranked UCLA and Stanford, No. 19, battled to a 20-20 standoff in a key Pacific-8 clash while Louisiana State,

No. 9, edged Auburn, No. 14, 21-20 in the Southeastern Conference.

Both games were decided by blocked kicks. UCLA's Vince Bischof blocked a 32-yard field goal attempt by Stanford's Steve Horowitz as time ran out and LSU's George Bevan deflected a conversion try by Auburn's John Riley early in the final period. Earlier, Bill Thomas blocked a Riley field goal attempt.

All other ranked teams won, except No. 17 Mississippi, which bowed to Houston 25-11 as Jim Strong ran for 212 yards.

Top-rated Ohio State breezed past winless Illinois 41-0 for its 19th consecutive triumph since losing to the Illini in 1967. Second-ranked Texas eased by Rice 31-0 and Arkansas, ranked fourth, walloped Wichita State 52-14 as John Eichler filled in for injured quarterback Bill Montgomery. Third-ranked Tennessee was idle.

Southern California, rated seventh, needed two touchdowns in the final three minutes — the first a 55-yard bomb from Jimmy Jones to Sam Dickerson — to turn back Georgia Tech, a three-touchdown underdog, 29-18.

Penn State, No. 8, had little trouble with Ohio University after the first period and posted a 42-3 triumph. John Reeves, Florida's brilliant sophomore quarterback, threw five scoring passes as the 10th ranked Gators downed Vanderbilt 41-20. Reeves' 20 touchdown passes erased the school record of 16 set by Steve Spurrier in 1966.

Jim Vandiver Drives Way To Record

Talladega, Ala. (AP) — Jim Vandiver of Charlotte, N.C., setting a tract record, pushed his 1969 Dodge Charger to victory Sunday in the $50,750 Vulcan 500, the longest, richest race in the history of the Automobile Racing Club of America.

An estimated 28,500 fans watched Vandiver score a two-lap margin over Ramo Stott of Keokuk, Iowa, in what boiled down to a two-car race after the fast, grueling track took 18 of the 41 starters out.

Vandiver picked up $8,575 in winning the first race of the 1970 ARCA season.

He had won the pole position at 194.476 mph and poured it on in the race to average 157.017 mph. He drove the 500 miles in a little over three hours and 12 minutes to erase the 153.778 track record set last month by Richard Brickhouse in the inaugural Talladega 500.

Vandiver grabbed the lead before a third of the race was over and held it the rest of the way except for a brief time when he had to stop for tires and gasoline.

Hard driving Dr. Don Tarr of Miami, Fla., led for the first 60 laps until his 1969 Dodge hit the wall on the fourth turn when his right front tire blew out. He was finished for the day.

Vandiver, Stott and Lund regularly toured the 2.66-mile track at speeds above 190 mph.

Yarbrough Sets Year's Money-Winning Record

Rockingham, N.C. (AP)—Lee Roy Yarbrough became the biggest season money winner in NASCAR history Sunday by capturing the American 500 stock car race.

The victory boosted Yarbrough's winnings this year to $218,000.

David Pearson, who finished second in a 1969 Ford, captured the NASCAR title point standings. The season game the Spartanburg, S.C., driver an extra $18,000, in addition to the $10,225 second place money.

Yarbrough, who also drove a 1969 Ford, won $17,600 in prize money. With three races left in the season, no other drivers can possibly overtake Yarbrough and Pearson in the money and point categories.

Yarbrough's 111,932 miles per hour pace also set a record for stock cars on one mile tracks. The old record was 105.106 m.p.h. set last year.

Although seven drivers held the lead during the race, Pearson and Yarbrough dominated the action after the first 100 laps. Yarbrough gained a firm hold on the lead after the 327th lap, although Pearson held it briefly in the final stages.

Pearson was only 45 seconds behind the Columbia, S.C., driver when the race ended.

Richard Petty of Randleman, N.C., who was also in contention for the point standings crown, went out of the race on the 115th lap after his car hit a wall.

The caution flag was out seven times for 65 laps, but there were no major crashes.

Bobby Allison of Hueytown, Ala., who started second in a Dodge, went out after 20 laps when his car was bumped on a first turn spinout.

Charlie Glotzbach of Georgetown, Ind., who started at the pole position in a Mercury, went out after 280 laps when the engine blew in his Dodge Daytona.

He led for the first 40 laps until Cale Yarborough overtook him. Yarborough left the race on the 168th lap when his Mercury spun out on the back stretch.

Buddy Baker of Charlotte, N.C., finished third in a Dodge Charger. Baker had threatened early in the race but lost six crucial laps when his car hit a wall on the second turn.

Dave Marcis of West Salem, Wis., finished fourth in a Dodge Charger and John Sears of Ellebe, N.C., came in fifth in a Ford.

Yarbrough made 16 pit stops, 12 of them while the caution flag was out, and changed his tires 3 times.

His most serious problem came early in the race, when his car bumped the wall on the second turn. The crash damaged his tire, but his fast pit crew put him back in the race in less than a minute.

Ernie Derr Becomes Winningest Driver

Shreveport, La. (UPI)—Iowan Ernie Derr became the winningest driver in racing history Sunday as he wrapped up his 250th career win and 10th international motor contest association.

Derr guided his 1969 Dodge Charger into first place at the 150-lap Louisiana State Fair championship for the final race of the season.

Omaha Knights Slash
Oklahoma City (AP)—League-leading Omaha came from behind with four goals in the final six minutes Sunday night to down Oklahoma City 6-3, in Central Hockey League action.

Firearm deer hunters in Nebraska will again have nine days to outwit the state's white-tails and mule deer. But not all gunners will be offed on the same dates. The Blue and Nema units in the southeast corner of the state will be open from November 1 through 9, while units in the rest of Nebraska are open from November 8 through 16. The special hunt at DeSoto Bend Refuge will be held December 27 and 28. A record $2,300 firearm hunt permits were authorized by the Game Commission this year. Archery deer permits are unlimited in number, and that hunt runs from September 20 through December 31, except for a closure during the firearm season. Hunters must attach hide tags to their deer immediately after bagging them. Then, the animals must be sealed at a check station in the unit where taken or in the next adjacent unit in line with the hunters' direct travel to their residence not later than 12 noon of the day following the close of the season. Deer bagged with bow and arrow must be checked and sealed within 24 hours. Shooting hours are one-half hour before sunrise to one-half hour after sunset. Permission of the landowner or his agent is required to hunt on private land.

Missing Woman Alive In Europe

New York (AP) — The daughter of former heavyweight champion Gene Tunney, missing for two months, has been found alive in Europe and is in a hospital there in serious condition, a spokesman for the Tunney family reported Sunday night.

The report came by telephone from Ben Shore in Los Angeles, who identified himself as an employee of Rep. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., son of the former boxing champion.

Shore read a statement in behalf of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Tunney of Stamford, Conn., which said: "We are delighted and relieved to report that our daughter Joan has been found alive after being missing for two months in Europe."

"We were informed last night that she is under a physician's care in a western European city. Her husband, Carter Wilkinson, has gone to her side."

"Her condition is reported serious but not critical. Although we have no other information at this time, we are just thankful that she has been found alive."

A family spokesman reported Sept. 29 that Mrs. Wilkinson had disappeared during a European vacation. The spokesman said she was last seen in Bergen, Norway, and was reported missing there on Aug. 28.

Mrs. Wilkinson was to have met her husband in Hamburg, Germany.

The couple's two children, Alexandra, 5, and Erin, 3, were with their father at the time.

Wilkinson is a Milwaukee Wis., realtor. Mrs. Wilkinson has another brother, Gene Jr., in addition to John.

Norwegian and West German police participated in the search for Mrs. Wilkinson. At one time she was reported seen in Cuxhaven, Germany, aboard a passenger ship arriving from the Norwegian town of Stavanger.

MICHELE ROCARD

De Gaulle Supporter Is Defeated

Paris (AP) — Maurice Couve de Murville, Charles de Gaulle's most trusted collaborator, was defeated Sunday in a bid for the National Assembly seat he had hoped to make a platform for defending the ideas of the former president.

The upset winner in the by-election was Michel Rocard, 39-year-old leader of the extreme left Unified Socialist party, a man who campaigned for textbook socialism with a human face.

Rocard's victory was made possible by what appeared to be nearly unanimous support from rank and file Communist voters despite the party leadership's denunciation of what it calls the Unified Socialists' "policy of anti-communism and division of the left."

The resolution, passed Saturday and forwarded Sunday to President Nixon and to each U.S. senator, said the board was "persuaded upon the record of the hearings before the Senate Judiciary Committee that Judge Haynsworth failed to demonstrate that sensitivity to the high standards of conduct required and expected of nominees to the U.S. Supreme Court."

Meanwhile, in New York, the National Bar Association reaffirmed its opposition to Haynsworth and called on Nixon to withdraw his nomination.

William Peterson president of the organization of 2,400 Negro lawyers, said the association's executive committee voted unanimously on the action Saturday.

Portuguese Turnout Heavy, Caetano Claims Solid Win

Lisbon (AP) — Prime Minister Marcello Caetano's National Union Movement claimed victory at midnight Sunday in Portugal's first parliamentary elections with opposition slates in 43 years.

"The victory is solid and crystal clear," Interior Minister Antonio Manuel Gonçalves Rapazote said in a nationwide television speech.

Earlier returns showed the two main opposition forces—ranging from liberal Christian Democrats to crypto-Communists—running behind more than 7 to 1 in most of the nation's 18 districts.

The heavy vote in the Portuguese possessions—where the National Union was unopposed—showed the overseas population did not want "to negate its destiny subject to negotiations," said Joaquin Silva e Cunha, minister of country's overseas territories.

Government officials interpreted the trend as a massive vote of confidence for Caetano, a 63-year-old constitutional law professor who took over the helm of Portugal and its vast overseas provinces in Africa and Asia 13 months ago.

Caetano—not a deputy of the 130-seat National Assembly himself—has introduced moderate reforms in Portugal's government and economy, but has refrained from major changes in the country's overseas territories.

Unusually heavy numbers of voters turned out in summerlike weather.

The opposition consists of the Electoral Commission for Democratic Unity, a moderate Socialist group called CEUD and headed by lawyer Mario Soares, 44; the left-wing Electoral Democratic Committee, or CDE, and the Electoral Monarchist Commission, the CEM.

First returns in the balloting came from the Portuguese island of Timor, between Indonesia and Australia. There, 3,781 of the 4,716 voters cast ballots for the voters party.

In addition to the Portuguese homeland balloting also was carried out in the nation's other overseas territories: the Atlantic islands of Madeira and the Azores, Angola, Mozambique and Portuguese Guinea in Africa as well as Cape Verde, Sao Tome, Principe and Macao. The last is an enclave on the China mainland near Hong Kong.

In the territories only 1 per cent of the 14 million people were allowed to vote.

Russia Launches Two More Cosmos

Moscow (P) — The Soviet Union launched two unmanned satellites in the Cosmos series, bringing to 10 the number of successful launchings carried out this month.

The flurry of space activity was not unique, however, and there was no indication that the latest launchings were related to earlier experiments.

Cosmos 306 and Cosmos 307, announced a few hours apart, apparently had unrelated objectives.

The purpose of the new launchings, as usual, was not announced.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
